Fiendish Attack on Woman

ALL IRELAND MOURNS DEATH OF LORD MAYOR MACSWINEY

Drunken Man Throws Hot Soup on Woman

Local police are today searching for Albert Domladovic, who, it is charged, seriously scalded Mrs. Dora Matam, with whom de boarded at 242 Twelfth street, Saturday evening. The man was arrested Saturday evening but was released on payment of $25 bail and failed to put in his appearance for a hearing this morning and the Burgess ordered the case held over until the fiend is apprehended. The victim was present this morning for the hearing, her face being a mass of huge blisters as a result of the actions of the drunken boarder.

According to her story, the man came home drunk at supper time, and becoming enraged while she was preparing the evening meal he first picked up a huge pot and struck her over the head with it and then taking another kettle of boiling hot soup which was on the stove, he threw it over her head. A thirteen year old daughter of the woman, who was also in the room at the time, was threatened by the brute, who drove her from the house attempting to scald her with hot milk.

The screams of the injured woman attracted neighbors who called the police and the man was placed under arrest. A physician was called and dressed the burns, which covered the woman's face. The prisoner was taken to the police station, but later secured his freedom on placing a forfeit and evidently realized this would be the easiest way out of the trouble, failed to put in his appearance for the hearing this morning. He was about town Saturday night and although he has not put in his appearance at his old boarding house, it is thought he is still in town and his arrest is expected before the day is over.

Keystones are Victors

Opening up an attack that completely bewildered their opponents in the second half, the local Keystones romped away with their contest against the strong Industry team of McKeesport on the local grounds Saturday, by the score of 26 to 0. Neither team could gain much headway in the first half and the locals were compelled to be satisfied with a lone touchdown, but in the second half the entire backfield started a line plunging attack that netted for them three additional touchdowns in quick order.

A large crowd witnessed the game which, despite the hot weather, was played in record time. The Keystones showed up to better advantage than in their contest the previous week and with more interest being manifested in the practice could be a strong contender for the lightweight championship of the valley.

Following is the lineup of Saturday's game:

McKeesport--0		Keystones--26
Leake	L.E.	Wagner
Allen	L.T.	Kirkpatrick

Vote Straight Ticket

As a result of a survey of the sixty-seven counties of Pennsylvania Republican State committee officials are convinced there will be a tremendous voting of straight Republican tickets at the coming election and that the splitting common in elections in years gone by will be rare in November.

This condition is the result of the very general idea of the great body of voters that the time has come for a change at Washington, in opinion of State leaders.

State Chairman William E. Crow at State headquarters this week has been in conference with a great many county chairmen and congressional candidates and is well satisfied with the situation in the State. From the interest and enthusiasm displayed, together with a reports of effective work being done in close counties, makes it seem that the State chairman's hope that Pennsylvania will give a majority of three-quarters of a million votes for Harding and Coolidge will be realized.

The northern tier counties, central Pennsylvania and the eastern districts have entered into a spirit of what promises to be a Republican jollification on election day. The Republican vote in Philadelphia is expected to reach 350,000.

On account of his illness Senator Boies Penrose whose re-election for a fourth term is a certainty, has been unable to get over the State, but his colleagues on the ticket, Charles A. Snyder, candidate for State treasurer, and Samuel S. Lewis, candidate for auditor general, have been about a great deal and view optimistically the opportunity Pennsylvania has for being the leading Republican State of the nation in this election.

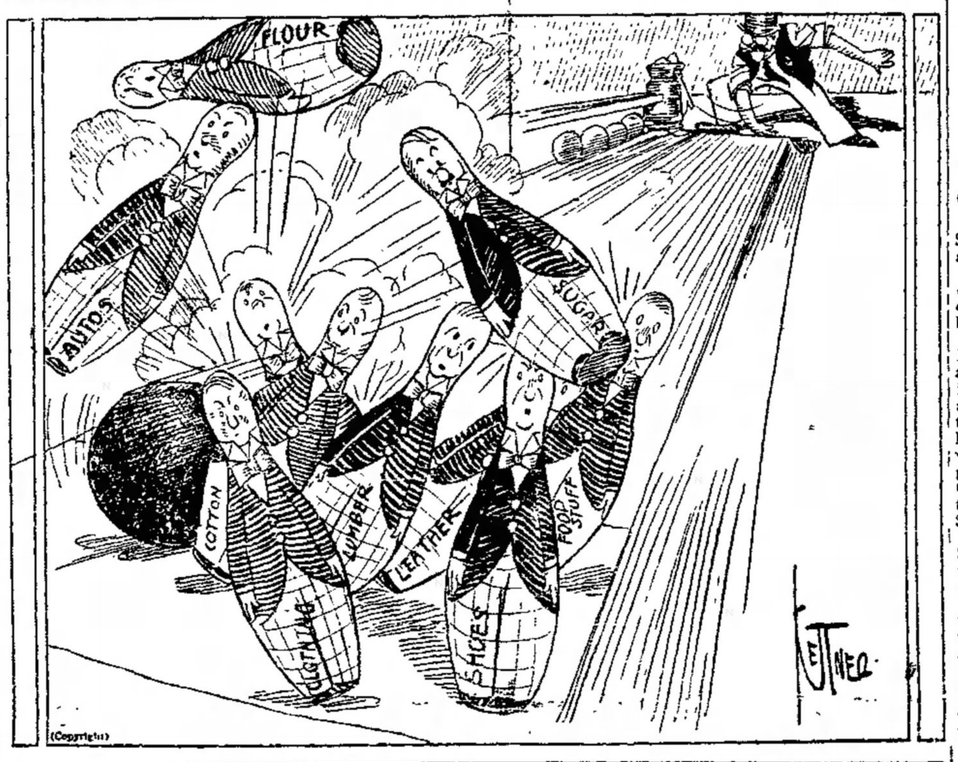
A Ten Strike



DISTRICT ATTORNEY HAS PROOF THAT LIQUOR INTERESTS FAVOR JOHN H. WILSON

Sensational exposure of Democratic perfidy in the campaign in Westmoreland county was made by Nevin A. Cort, district attorney, in a speech at West Newton Saturday night. Flashing signed documents on his audience District Attorney Cort conclusively proved that the campaign of John H. Wilson for congress is one of the most flagrant insults ever flung in the face of the voters by a political dual ignition system never yet equalled in this county.

The documents referred to are signed statements from certain hotel keepers in this county who were solicited and contributed the sum of $250 each to the Democratic campaign fund.

This is the face of the Wilson campaign in which the Butler county Democrat is making a strong appeal to the temperance people of the district to vote for him because he voted for the Volstead act.

Officially Mr. Cort is in an exceptional position to know whereof he speaks. In terms of denunciation he told of the futile attempts that have been made by his office to prevent violation of the Eighteenth amendment in this county. He told of the number of arrests that have been made and the difficulty his office has had with the Department of Justice in Pittsburgh in disposing of the cases.

Mr. Cort's speech in part follows:

"John H Wilson, the Democratic candidate for congress is making a desperate effort to get the vote of the temperance people of this district as well as the active support of those voters who are friendly to the liquor cause.

"In a letter to the Westmoreland County Temperance Federation to some extent evasive after two attempts by letter to satisfy, he finally declares for the Eighteenth amendment and the Volstead Enforcement act, with an intent, if re-elected, to congress to vote for an alcoholic increase if a majority of his constituents desire such an increase.

"On the other hand certain large liquor interests of the county resident owing allegiance to the Democratic state organization, through the local Democratic organizations, are soliciting campaign funds from the licensed hotel men of the county to aid in the election of Cox for president, and John H. Wilson for congress. and to my own personal knowledge two persons thus licensed have paid in cash $250 each for that purpose.

"I make this assertion, not without proof of its authenticity, for I hold in my hand here and now, for your inspection if any of you so desire the signed statements of two licensed hotel keepers who paid said amounts to the personal representatives of the Victory Brewing company of Jeannette, for the purpose I have stated."

It was one of the most enthusiastic political gatherings of the year and was held on the street in front of the Park theatre. Joseph A. Stevenson acted as chairman of the meeting. The singing of "America," preceded the addresses. Many women were in audience.

When Adam M. Wyant, candidate for congress, was introduced as the first speaker, he was given a hearty round of applause.

His attack on the League of Nations was without fear or trembling. If there were any people in the audience, or if there are any people in the district who support the League of Nations they have no reason now to doubt where Adam M. Wyant now stands. Branding it as a Godless document in which the name of deity does not appear he discussed several of the article sections.

Most emphatically he pledged his support to the Volstead Enforcement act and his support to the wishes of the constituents of the twenty-second district in relation to law making.

Hon. Charles E Whitten was the last speaker of the evening. He gave some good, sound advice to the women voters by telling them to line up with one of the old parties, and not to think of organizing a separate women's party. He too, discussed some phases of the league of nations.

Mr. Whitten's popularity in West Newton was shown by the approval shown by his audience. Incidentally he mentioned the fact that he made his maiden effort on the political forum at West Newton several years ago.

Immediately after concluding his address at West Newton Mr. Wyant was taken by auto bile to North Belle Vernon where another political meeting was in progress with Former Assistant District Attorney H. E. Cope and Capt. David Waldron making the preliminary addresses.

Mr. Cope devoted himself to Democratic extravagance and considering the brief time in which he had to present such a ponderous subject covered some of the most glaring features in excellent shape.

Capt. Waldron talked on the League of Nations. He discussed in particular Article X. but made reference to five other clauses. His talk showed considerable study.

When Mr. Wyant arrived he was given a hearty greeting. He talked along the lines similar to those mentioned in his West Newton address.

This evening the spellbinders will be at Trafford. Candidate Wyant will be the principal speaker there.

Must Obey Law

Harrisburg, Oct. 25.—Employers are required to post notices regarding the rules and upkeep of sanitation facilities in mercantile and industrial establishments throughout the state, according to a regulation in the new sanitation code which is to be considered at a hearing in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh this week.

The Department of Labor and Industry has prepared placards to be issued on application to aid employers in securing the co-operation of their employes in the enforcement of this regulation, it was learned.

The new rule in the sanitation code is intended to promote health, as well as sanitation for those who are forced to use these accommodations. One hearing on the code will be held in Philadelphia today, the other on Friday in Pittsburgh. A public hearing in Harrisburg will be held later it was announced.

Death Ends Hunger Strike of MacSwiney

By LLOYD ALLEN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

London, Oct. 25—Terence MacSwiney died in Brixton prison at 5:40 a. m., today.

The Lord Mayor of Cork died without regaining consciousness at the dawn of the seventy-fourth day of his hunger strike.

With MacSwiney as he died were Father Dominic, his religous adviser, and his brother John. John remained in the prison throughout the night and was not permitted to leave Brixton prison until 6:15. In that time he was not permitted to communicate with other relatives. MacSwiney began sinking at midnight last night. Officials refused to permit the priest to notify relatives, according to a Sinn Fein announcement.

The Lady Mayoress and MacSwiney's sisters, Annie and Mary, visited the prison at 9 p. m. They stayed 15 minutes and left quetly.

The prisoners wife made her last visit to the bedside Saturday afternoon but the two sisters had not been allowed to see their brother since Friday. They were denied admission Saturday and remained in the prison waiting room all day without food. They finally were ejected late at night by Constables.

MacSwiney's death was believed near Thursday when he became delirious. His body was racked with tremors which continued even after he regaind consciousness.

Physicians gave him his first food as he lost control of himself. They gave him beef extract and brandy. The prisoner raged when he recovered and knew from the odors that he had taken food. Thereafter he was fed whenever he lost consciousness. Although the food was retained physicians had little hope that he would recover. His mental attitude was against it and he wore himself out raging against being fed.

It was at this stage that relatives were deprived of their freedom in visiting the prisoner. Physicians protested that the process of feeding him made it advisable to bar them.

The last outsider to see him was Art O'Brien, of the Self-Determination League. O'Brien issued a statement saying that the feeding of MacSwiney was unnecessary violence.

After lying in comparative comfort for almost seventy days of his strike, MacSwiney's last days were painful and harrowing.

Previously MacSwiney had lain on his bed, packed in hot water bottles, contentedly receiving visitors and pacefully contemplating the effect of his act on the cause of Ireland.

Then came his delirium in his first feeding. There were several delirious spells during which MacSwiney raved and shouted of the Irish republican army, drilling imaginary Irish courts.

He swung his arms in exhortation and huskily called orders. Opening his eyes he would ask his relatives if the republic had been firmly established and if Ireland was functioning as a nation.

The Lady Mayoress apparently knew death was coming when she saw her husband Saturday.

"It's too horrible. I can't talk about it anymore" she said when she left the prison late in the afternoon. She was ill Sunday as a result of the long and trying experience.

MacSwiney, said to be suffering from lung trouble when arrested on August 12, went on a hunger strike immediately. He was convicted on August 16 by a military court on charges of preparing and having in his possession seditous literature.

Eleven other Irish Republicans arrested at about the same time went on a hunger strike two days earlier in the Cork jail.

When MacSwiney was deported to England to be placed in Brixton jail shortly after sentence, he was so weak he had to be carried aboard the steamer on a stretcher. It was believed then that he would die in a few days.

The lordmayor lived, however, with only slight changes in his condition. He lived to see one of the other hunger strikers, Michael Fitzgerald, die after 63 days of fasting.

While he lay on the cot in Brixton jail conditions in Ireland became still more acute. The government announced that it would proceed rigorously against the Sinn Fein instead of assuming the defensive.

There began the period of reprisals when police exacted swift vengeance for every ambush and attack by Sinn Feiners. Homes and business buildings were destroyed and Sinn Fein leaders were shot by "black and tans in reprisal for the death of their comrades.

Epidemic Subsiding

From all indications, the scourge of typhoid fever which has been visited upon Bentleyville, is subsiding greatly. Despite many rumors of a hundred cases or more, authentic reports now available show that the largest number of cases reported at any time was 32. To date four deaths have been reported. It is said that practically all of the wells in the borough tested for typhus germs by state authorities have been found poluted. General orders have been issued by those in charge of the sanitation of the community, and in cases where offenders did not comply with demands they have been brought to terms.

Attack Newspaper

The Braddock Quizz, a newspaper and the residence of the editor, Jas. Quinn, were attacked by a party or unknown persons early Saturday morning. The hoodlums attempted to wreck the newspaper plant and then fired shots through windows of the home of its editor. The Quizz recently published editorials attacking gamblers, bootleggers, proprietors of speakeasies and others responsible for alleged conditions in the steel town.

Members of the P. O. S. of A. attended services at the First Presbyterian church in Donora last evening. Camps were present from many towns along the Monongahela valley as well as in Washington county. The members held a parade prior to the services.

REPUBLICAN IN POLITICS

THE BANK'S THE PLACE

The bank's the place for surplus money.

One of the causes of business stagnation is scarcity of money in banks, which have just now little to none to lend for ordinary purposes.

An authority declared at Washington the other day that nearly $3,000,000,000 of our $6,000,000,000 in currency is either hidden away in old stockings and trunks or carried about in the pockets of the owners.

At the same time the newspapers announced the finding of $320 in gold in an old trunk by a woman who had bought the receptacle for one dollar. That may have been rare luck for the finder but it certainly was hard luck for the man or woman who hid it there.

All money that is hidden away is subject to theft or loss, either by fire or otherwise.

All money that is carried about in the pocket is apt to be stolen, lost or spent on trivial things.

If the three billion dollars either hidden or in the pockets of careless folks was in the banks, the country would be far more prosperous, because in the banks it would be working while out of them it is worse than idle.

It is good business from every standpoint to have a checking account and every bank is anxious to have such accounts, no matter how small the sum. Getting the bank habit is getting the habit of paying by check, and paying by check adds to one's standing in his own community. One known to have a bank account gets credit more easily than he who carries his cash in his pocket.

The man who puts his money in a bank is on the way to thrift and prosperity, and prosperity is a mighty factor in the happiness and the contentment of the individual.

Next to the Bible, the bank book is the next best book in the whole world.

COUNTY HOMES

The poor directors of the State want to abolish the title "poor house" and substitute the more euphonious title of "county home," at the same time giving more thought to the feelings, the comforts and the longings of those who are compelled by circumstances to accept the hospitality of the counties in which they live.

Nearly all those confined to poor houses are there either because of the sins of society against them or for reasons beyond their control. In either case they are more sinned against than sinning. If they are deserving of a living at the hands of the taxpayers, that living ought to be something more than a bare existence. They ought to have common comforts ,pleasant and healthful surroundings and whatever of small luxuries the finances of the districts will permit.

The directors take a proper and popular view of it.

WOMEN AND MEN

Daniel Starch, professor of psychology at the University of Wisconsin, has been making studies to determine whether men or women are mentally superior. He reports conclusions in the American magazine. He finds that women are slightly better in memory and in use of language. Men seemed to be better in arithmetical reasoning and history and economics.

More boys than girls made the highest showing of mental ability, and there were more boys to make the poorest showing.

Dr. Starch found that the advercisement writers who feel they must make a distinct kind of appeal to interest women, were wrong. Tests of advertisements that would interest the two sexes, showed that about 85 per cent of men and women chose the same advertisements as the most effective.

The conclusion seemed to be that men and women do not differ much in mental ability. Where men excel, it is probably because their experience has sent them more out into the world where their faculties have broader training.

NOBODY CARES

Bill Hohenzollern, who, at one time, was quite a prominent citizen of Berlin, has according to the latest cable dispatch, drawn his last will and testament.

The one-time kaiser says this is going to be his last will; that never again will he draw another.

Who cares?

Not many years ago Bill drew up another will. It left a vast empire to an oldest son; great wealth to other sons; titles and honors to this friend and that. Indeed, Bill was nicely liberal with his earthly possessions, including his country's soil and people.

But this will be different.

It bequeathes the old saw-buck at Doorn to a museum, and the remnants of a huge fortune to the sons who viewed the war from distant hills.

But who cares?

Why, nobody cares enough about this Hohenzollern fellow to inquire what has become of the proposed trial in the Tower of London.

PAINS NEARLY DOUBLED ME UP

Nothing Helped Me Until I Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Wyandotte, Mich.—"For the last four years I have doctored off and on without help. I have had pains every month so bad that I would nearly double up. Sometimes I could not sweep a room without stopping to rest, and everything I ate upset my stomach. Three years ago I lost a child and suffered so badly that I was out of my head at times. My bowels did not move for days and I could not eat without suffering. The doctor could not help me and one day I told my husband that I could not stand the pain any longer and sent him to the drug-store to get me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and threw the doctor's medicine away. After taking three bottles of Vegetable Compound and using two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash I could do my own housework. If it had not been for your medicine I don't know where I would be today and I am never without a bottle of it in the house. You may publish this if you like that it may help some other woman."—Mrs. MARY SIVERA, 130 Orange St., Wyandotte, Mich.

Monkey Glands Lead To New Tonic

Sheep and Cattle Glands Now Put Up in Tablet Form Combined with Iron.

The newspapers have reported cases of surgical operations where monkey glands have been transferred to human beings.

It is now further reported that gland substances taken from healthy young sheep and cattle, prepared in tablet form, are being administered in rundown, anaemic conditions requiring building up and where there is evidence of glandular deficiency.

It is claimed in support of this theory that our tiny glands govern the activity and health of the billions of life cells in our bodies. When we are weak run down, thin anaemic, listless, it is claimed that our glands are lacking in strength and cannot supply the proper amount of needed help. So what could be more natural than to supply this lack with gland extracts of healthy animals?

The Glandex Company, Inc., 244 W. 29th St., N. Y., supply in the form of a tablet under the name of Glandex Compound, a combination of Gland substances with iron and other tonic agents which also help nature restore health and strength.

During the past few months this product has come into quite general use in those sections of the country where its merits as a general tonic have been given publicity. In fact, druggists report that they have never seen a tonic adopted by so many rundown men and women.

So confident are the manufacturers of the merit of Glandex Compound that the druggists are authorized to refund the full purchase price should anyone fail to feel satisfactory benefit after two weeks.

Note: $1,000 will be paid by the Glandex Company, Inc., to anyone proving that Glandex Compound does not contain genuine desiccated gland substance (popularly known as Gland Extracts) from sheep and cattle.

BOTH PARTIES IN GOOD LUCK

Passengers in Auto and Odoriferous "Pussies" Alike Went on Their Way Rejoicing.

An unusual sight was witnessed last week on the road to Ossot. A party of Brooklynites were motoring to Barrowhurst and on the road this side of Ossot there suddenly appeared a black and white patch. The machine approached the spot at a fast rate and as it drew nearer the mass straightened out into a cat across the road. There was a gasp of astonishment—and of dismay, also, for the black-and-white mass proved to be a mother skunk leading four little ones across the street. They were moving very slowly, so slowly indeed that it was impossible to stop the car before it reached them.

Admonitions of "Don't hit them" were not necessary to the driver of the machine, but he was wondering how he was going to miss them. As luck would have it, the mother skunk just then separated herself from the four little ones and the machine passed right over her without harming a hair of the odorous animal.

The passengers, looking back, saw the mother polecat huddled in the road, while her offspring had turned and were streaking it across the highway and over the railway tracks into the friendly bushes. They were right in the path of an approaching trolley car, but negotiated the retreat without a casualty. Probably the unharmed but dazed mother rejoined her little flock later. Had the auto and the skunks had a collision it must have cast a gloom over subsequent proceedings for the car and its cargo.—Brockton Enterprise.

PUT HUBBY IN BAD LIGHT

Matter of Mistaken Identity Promised to Make Things Warm for Entirely Innocent Man.

A certain resident of Indianapolis, who is one of twins, in company with his wife and son, visited his twin brother, who lives in the northern part of the city. The family was returning home and had just reached Washington and Illinois streets when the wife saw the car, to which they were to transfer, rounding the corner.

"Oh, here comes our car," she said, and regardless of the conductor's familiar warning, "Wait till the car stops lady," she jumped off backward, alighting with considerable force on the pavement. Refusing to give the car crew her name and address the family hurried home.

The next morning an auto stopped in front of the brother's home and an inspector, motorman, conductor and a policeman who had witnessed the mishap of the night before knocked on the door and asked the condition of the woman who had fallen. The brother's wife volunteered the information that no one there had fallen from a car. After an argument one of the car crew remarked, "Well, if some woman living here didn't fall off my car then I'm bulged was out with someone who did."—Indianapolis News.

Mongoose in Trinidad.

The mongoose was originally introduced into Trinidad from St. Lucia for the purpose of clearing the island of rats and snakes, but at the present time it is considered a very great pest. Moreover the sugar producers of Trinidad have discovered since that during the last few years, partly because of the ravages of frogs, toads, the lizards, which formerly kept down the insects, are being seriously troubled by the mongoose. In fact, large estates in Trinidad pay a shilling a head for every mongoose destroyed on their estates, and many hundreds are destroyed every year without any attempt being made to save the skins. Colonel Baker, therefore, suggests that possibly the mongoose skins might have considerable value as furs in the United States, and has forwarded a sample of such a skin to the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, where it may be seen and by interested persons.

"OLD GLORY" NEVER SALUTES

Incident of Boy Scout Jamboree in London Apparently Misunderstood There and in America.

There has been much comment on this side of the ocean as well as the other because during the recent "International Scout Jamboree" in London the American Boy Scouts did not dip their flag in salute, as the scouts of all other countries did.

Even when ceremonies were held in honor of the war dead, the American flag remained steadily upright when all other flags were dipped. When King George reviewed the Scouts, again our flag remained stationary while all other flags saluted him.

It is reported that this "unfortunate event" left "an unfavorable impression" and critical comments have come from some quarters in this country also.

But there will be no criticism in any quarter where the rules of the flag are known, and especially there will be no criticism from anybody who has read the booklet of information for the use of the flag—for there those very points were set forth.

"The national color never salutes." Every state and all state regimental and other flags pay tribute to the Stars and Stripes. But [illegible] takes [illegible] the United States.

A Girlless System

By T. B. ALDERSON

(©, 1920, Western Newspaper Union)

"Discharge all the female employees," exclaimed Hugh Bertrand, and he stood stock still viewing his employer, Mark Seaton, with the stare of a startled and displeased man.

"That is the order answered the latter tersely "and it is to be put in effect within a week."

Hugh Bertrand made no reply. He was an under superintendent of the town plant devoted to the manufacture of loose-leaf devices, where he had been employed for many years. Within the previous month Mark Seaton had purchased the business from its original owners. Bertrand had heard that the new proprietor was a tyro and a disciplinarian and anticipated trouble. He decided to make a suggestion for the good of all. In a little speech to his fellow employees a week before the arrival of Seaton, he said:

"We are a happy contented group of friends and have grown accustomed to easy, comfortable ways in our labors here, but the world moves and we want to adjust ourselves to its progress. The new management will probably install a time clock and a system of pen lines for the workers and make considerable changes in general methods. Let everyone seek adjustment to the conditions. If we follow this sensible course there need be no disturbing friction."

"I can't understand what Mr Seaton is driving at in discharging the female employees. Why, it simply overturns the efficiency of the whole business!" scornfully reflected Bertrand. His cousin Grace was in charge of one of the departments, and to her he duly went. She looked grave and troubled.

"I heard that Mr Seaton was what is called a woman hater before he came here," she said. "Only a few days ago, a friend told me that he overheard Mr Seaton telling a visitor that fixed that he did not believe in keeping women employees. He said the thought of losing his pretty stenographer would cause him to lose his appetite. I fancy he must have been crossed in love, father."

"I don't know," answered Bertrand gloomily. "But he has no right to see that the female help elements in the workers has refined them to a degree and has made work actually agreeable I don't know how it may be in the city where the help is constantly changing, but here we are like a family, well brought up together.

It was followed out and the girlless system duly inaugurated There was a parting of lovers, of sisters—even of husbands and wives, for in some instances whole families had worked together The places of the girls and women were filled mainly now by boys and young men. The old male employees were dissatisfied at the new arrangement The pleasant noon hours in agreeable, harmonious company gave way to a dull, uneventful resting period.

Grace Bertrand came in close contact with Mr Seaton because of the fact that she had always headed the girl employees as a sort of leader Many went to work in other towns and it was her province to visit Seaton and secure recommendation for them. It some-hat softened his hard nature to realize the helpful, unselfish nature of the businesslike, sensible young girl who expressed no overt criticism as to his drastic exaction, but still made him feel that he was the cause of causing confusion, and in some cases distress in scattering a community of girls who had led a safe happy life under the old menage.

Within a month there brooded over the plant a sense of disruption and discontent that Seaton could not help but notice. Many of the expert workers fearing other changes and infested with a sense of instability, resigned to seek new employment. Nobody liked the new proprietor, and he felt it.

Several times when he met Grace on the street he engaged her in apparently casual conversation, but gradually brought it about to the labor situation, and the results of the innovation he had made. The girl attracted him—he felt the influence of new viewpoints. Secretly he wished he had consulted her before he made the change that he plainly discerned was not beneficial to the general group in a money way, too, there was a palpable retrogression.

One morning Grace Bertrand became the heroine of the plant. Her statement of friendship and sympathy had taken the place of the watchman of the plant, who had serious illness in his family At eleven o'clock, Grace rose to go to the works to take home a noon lunch. She found him bound and gagged, and a coterie of burglars in the office attempting to open the safe which at that especial time of the week held an unusually large amount of money.

Quickly Grace listened to the position. The burglars were apprehended and she made sure leaving the plant in a manner that would have nothing to do with its owner financially.

It came to pass that her employer had treated so patriotic had saved him from bankruptcy, Mark Seaton fell

Grace later on he had decided to restore former conditions.

And having her and thus having new interests in life and its issues when he married Grace her girl friends kept up their influence and continue to protect their interests.

Which Stone Is Best?

It is strange that after all the centuries of building and rebuilding in the great project in Egypt should set on foot a fierce controversy as to what really is the stone which best withstands that city's atmosphere. Perhaps a generation hence the answer will be none, and the Egyptian will be extinct, and the residential quarter will be down on its knees in the sand to the Nile itself. Portland stone has been claimed generally as the city's most useful building stone, but there are dissenting ones, and the conclusion seems to be that no one stone can withstand the ravages of London's atmosphere by itself, and of using of examined faces of the stone.

SPOON IN FAVOR WITH TURKS

Subjects of the Sultan Have Little Use for the Fork as a Table Utensil.

According to figures compiled by the American Cutlery bureau of information, the average yearly requirements of Constantinople before the war in the way of cutlery were 50,000 dozens of table knives, 30,000 dozens of spoons, 20,000 dozens of forks, 50,000 dozens of scissors, 25,000 dozens of razors of all kinds and 5,000 dozens of hair clippers.

As will be seen, much more spoons are sold than forks, which is contrary to the experience in other countries where, as a rule, more forks are required than spoons. This is explained by the fact that Constantinople supplies great quantities of cutlery to Asia Minor and other outlying regions of the former Turkish empire, where table manners still have not been developed up to the standard of Paris.

The Arab is fond of the spoon, because it is handy in eating his cereals, but he prefers to deal with chops by way of the fingers, which is a more simple procedure than piercing one's eye with a fork.

So it is the spoon that stands on the top of the list of the cutlery orders coming from Turkey to Uncle Sam. It is conceded in all foreign countries today that American table cutlery holds the center of the stage in point of quality.

Accidents Take Heavy Toll.

Every year 11,037,000 persons are hurt in various kinds of accidents, and 150,000 are killed. That's according to the statistics of the health and accident underwriters' conference. The figures are averages. The insurance men say the "personal carelessness of the American is to blame" and that speed is the present plague.
